HALLOWEEN SAFETY FOR FAMILIES

Every year, over 150 million Americans participate in Halloween festivities. Of these, 41 million children age 5 to 14 will go trick-or-treating.

However, the quest for candy isn't all fun and games. According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, more than twice as many children are injured in pedestrian accidents on Halloween than other days throughout the year.

In addition to learning about pedestrian safety, Halloween is a great chance to talk to your children about

- Food safety,
- Fire safety, and
- Situational awareness

CONTROL THE CANDY

Feed your children a light meal or snack before going trick-or-treating. This will discourage them from snacking on their bounty. Urge your children to wait until they get home to eat their candy. Inspect their candy when they get home.

FLAME OFF

Avoid using Halloween decorations with real flames. Instead, use battery-operated lights to illuminate your jack-o-lanterns. If you must use actual candles, never leave them unattended and keep them away from curtains.

HOUSE RULES

Go with your children to the door of every home you visit. Never let your children enter a stranger's home without your permission. Only approach homes with lit porch lights or ones that clearly are inviting trick-or-treaters.

WALK THE WALK

Always accompany your children when trick-or-treating. Walk, don't run, from house to house. Only cross streets at crosswalks. Teach your children to look both ways before crossing the street.

CONSIDER YOUR ALTERNATIVES

If you're at all concerned about your children's safety during Halloween, consider going to a party at a friend's home or attending a well-planned, local event. Many schools, malls, or theme parks offer trick-or-treating events.
